GuessIt! – User Documentation

GuessIt! is a platform aimed to help age-related scientific research using an average user's input. The core concept is simple: we show you an image, and you try to guess their age. However, there are additional functions that will allow you to further help us on our research; functions that are described in this document. You do not need to register or have an account on our platform in order to use it. However, the additional features mentioned before can only be accessed after creating an account, so keep that in mind.

When you enter the GuessIt! Platform, things are pretty straightforward. You will be greeted with a bunch of images and a text box that will allow you to start guessing ages right away, without any hassle.

When guessing ages, there are three possible messages that will be displayed on-screen: when you're right, when you're wrong by just a small margin, and when you guessed way off.

That's about it when it comes to the unregistered users' functionality. People who do not create an account only have access to the rating system, which will provide feedback based on how they're doing and to keep them engaged. If you want to further help the investigation providing pictures of yourself, you will need to create an account. For this, the first step will be clicking on the user icon located on the top-right portion of the screen, which will open a small window showing a login form.

Once logged in, you will notice that two more icons have appeared on the side navigation bar: one for uploading and checking your photos, and another one for logging out.

As a registered user, you have now unlocked the functionality of uploading a picture of yourself. Note that uploading a picture will automatically make it available for everyone to view and rate in their home pages, so keep that in mind before uploading any embarrassing or compromising pictures of yourself to our platform. To upload an image of yourself, you will need to navigate to the images section and click on the blue button with an addition sign shown on the upper right corner of the page.

Clicking on it will reveal an image upload window right at the center of your screen, which will let you choose a file on your computer, tablet or phone, and it will ask you to provide the age that you had in that picture so that our page has the correct age reference.

Once you have chosen your file and provided us with the age that you had in said picture, clicking submit will upload it into our database, and it will be available for you to see in "Your Pictures" as well as the general public that wants to guess your age.

As expected, the log out button will close your session, no longer allowing access to your personal images to any stranger.
